

"A very clever, extremely well-done romp that somehow manages to make the birth of a granddaughter, the Mafia and global warming all work brilliantly ensemble style. A fine, fun story that is not without serious depth and warmth. I loved it."

--Ed Gorman, Writer of the Sam McCain series

"A funny, fast-paced crime story whose serious points pack the wallop of a forty-five."

--Terence Faherty, Shamus-winning author of the Scott Elliott series.

"A hilarious, albeit chilling, eco-Mafia novel--a new species. Lopresti knows his mobsters, his New Jersey, and his science, and knows how to make it all sing."

--SJ Rozan, Edgar-winning author (as Sam Cabot) of SKIN OF THE WOLF

"Robert Lopresti's GREENFELLAS has a great concept and vivid characters, both criminals and commoners. There's snappy patter and a fast-moving story, and it's funny, too. Elmore Leonard fans (and everybody else) should snap this up immediately."

--Bill Crider, bestselling author of the Sheriff Dan Rhodes mysteries

Cover by Kalpart. Com ~~~ Interior by Caroline Kingsley

ISBN 978-1-61009-176-3 ~ Trade Paperback
272 pages ~ $15.95 SRP ~ LCCN 2015933094

Ask for GREENFELLAS
at your favorite bookseller

Also available from Amazon.com
and direct from Publisher

Contact Jeana Lomprez, Press Manager
Oak Tree Press, 1820 W. Lacey Blvd #220
Hanford, CA 93230 ~ 217 825 4743

Email: pressdept@oaktreebooks.com

Visit us at www.oaktreebooks.com
otpblog.blogspot.com

Robert Lopresti grew up in New Jersey, where GREENFELLAS is set. He is currently the environmental science librarian at a university in the Pacific Northwest. He is the author of more than fifty short stories and has won the Black Orchid Novella Award and the Derringer (twice), and been nominated for the Anthony. He conceived and edited THURBER ON CRIME. Kearney Street Books published his first novel SUCH A KILLING CRIME.

SHANKS ON CRIME, a collection of stories set in New Jersey, was published in 2014. He blogs at SleuthSayers.com and reviews short stories at Little Big Crimes.